European Innovation Center

The German pharmaceutical company Boehringer Ingelheim has opened its new production plant in Sant Cugat del Vallès (Barcelona).

With this innovative center the company signals its commitment to Spain as a European center of innovation. With an investment of over 120 million euros, this new facility will mean the creation of up to 200 jobs.

The construction of this new factory started in 2017 and included a fast and innovative process that was meticulously planned. The various phases were carried out simultaneously to speed up completion. More than 300 people and 25 suppliers were involved in this project and guaranteed it to be completed in just two years.

A durable flooring solution

The project consists of 17,000 m². This was divided into production, laboratories, warehouse, offices and technical areas. It also meets the most stringent quality and environmental protection requirements. Boehringer was looking for a durable flooring solution, with antistatic characteristics which is in compliance with pharmaceutical regulations for ISO 8 classification rooms.

The solution offered was the installation of our Stonclad GS system with Stonkote AT5 coating a nuance static control coating.

In 2019, Stonhard started with the renovation of the old production facility by installing the Stonblend GSI system. This project was not contracted directly by Boehringer, therefore we also had to work with the general contractor and convince them of the benefits of our floor solutions. Boehringer has always preferred the proposed floor solution from Stonhard.
